Event Particle (6)

by stephen hastings-king

Fragments from the clouds of rust that fall away from imploded stars arrive with the wind that comes hissing in fingers through the windows bringing a virus that replicates in the light bulbs that hang overhead from wires. Now there is something pulsing in the shovel against the window and its pompadour of snow.

Available online at «http://fictionaut.com/stories/stephen-hastings-king/event-particle-6»
Copyright © 2010 stephen hastings-king. All rights reserved.