February

by Steven Pirani

a big silent western sky every night a dome hung lights over monument valley, violent blue, to the brim old faithful american love stories carved with a stalk yellow dog and a bolt of lightning, alone.
taste the wind from
the crack in the rockies, tell me we aren't just dying in our homes built in stacks

Available online at «http://fictionaut.com/stories/steven-pirani/february» Copyright © 2017 Steven Pirani. All rights reserved.