

Sisyphus

by Adam Sifre

I build pedestals.
It's hard work
Held together by sweat, love, and lofty thoughts - an unsound foundation.

The tiniest bit of heartbreak,
and it comes crashing down.

Always, I blame the builder and not the vandal.
The next one will be taller. Stronger.
It's exhausting work.

