Sisyphus

by Adam Sifre

I build pedestals.

It's hard work

Held together by sweat, love, and lofty thoughts an unsound foundation.

The tiniest bit of heartbreak, and it comes crashing down.

Always, I blame the builder and not the vandal. The next one will be taller. Stronger. It's exhausting work.