

The Guardian of Starlight

by Bill Yarrow

now the days are empty
and time has lost its head I am the bloodworm
crawling in pin earth

the greedy mosquito
in love with the naked
baby, the red mole
burrowing the butterfly dust

here comes
the involuntary spider
with the emerald web
around his throat

