

Time

by Bill Yarrow

Time is the fragrant jelly spread on the black bread of eternity. Time is the gravy of the bloody roast beef of emptiness. Time is the slime on the original skin of infancy.
Time is the vatic lining of the popular soul. Time's the proxy messiah of the world.
Time is the meconium of God.

