

Snowdrop

by Claire King

Spring shows its populist face,
Flies in the house, missionaries at the door,
Emptiness in every place,
I didn't plant bulbs the year before.
Prickly heat under the coat,
That forms my snug and safe cocoon,
Daylight hours drag on and on.
The equinox will be here soon.

