

Frankenstein (In Three Sentences)

by Darby Harn

I made a man of men. He made a man of me, the way all men are finished, in tragedy and sorrow. Together, we make a story, for other men, brothers and sisters.

