Adopt a Dolphin

by Darryl Price

Love to everyone. In spite of painters chest deep in the wheat fields. Of poets in the belfry. Bird flu.

Love to everyone. In spite of rats as big as dogs in New York city. Or blue plastic bags stuck on branches. Whales beaching themselves. Everyone's gone to the moon. Love to everyone. In spite of religion being used to make more hate and war, not peace. As many guns as Valentine cards in children's classrooms.

Love to everyone everywhere. In spite of all our lonely messes. Of misplaced aching affections.
