

You Knew This Was Coming

by Darryl Price

but that doesn't mean, the shows on TV are all lies. An orange flower is very good at telling the truth, but only as it pertains to its own palette. You can change perspectives as soon as you look around. You knew this was coming when you decided to speak ill of the living. Let's try this again. Starfish are trying to tell you some important thing about stars, but their alphabet consists of only five arms and, well, pretty much nothing else, unless you count all the eating and drinking and sleeping and crawling and then being eaten alive. A pink dolphin's perspective is totally different.

I imagine a cloud's perspective is high flying and spread across a lot of blue spaces.
You can change as soon as you become aware of something else happening from what you always think.

One dimensional life isn't living. You knew because you felt each shape.

