

Strangeness

by Deb Oestreicher

The goose on the roof
isn't aware it is doing anything odd; it just stopped because it was tired, or because it thought the roof was grass. Maybe the goose is colorblind; maybe it lacks depth perception. The point is,
the goose doesn't care
that you've stopped traffic to stare, or what you risk as you insist
on capturing this
strangeness.
