

flash poem

by Deborah Oster Pannell

Why flash?

because the moments, the moments, they pass in flashes of brilliance that shudder, death glow alight and nothing makes sense beyond now and nothing will help me but me and I am not even enough not my thoughts or your nod of assent or even the deep sigh of satisfaction that disappears in the next breath

