

almost a still life

by Dorothee Lang

on the opposite side
of a red brick wall
another row of houses

 windows
 ndos // facing /
ind o / acing windows

the sky

 a small stripe
 on the sidewalk

the fading light

 a memory
 waiting for its owner

(notes)

(original post, Sunday 11 a.m.)

almost a still life .1

on the opposite side
of a red brick wall
another row of houses

windows
facing windows
at the edge of a steel frame
the sky
a small stripe

on the sidewalk
the fading light of a memory
waiting for its owner

(or like this?)

almost a still life .2

on the opposite side
of a red brick wall
another row of houses -
windows
facing windows

the sky
a small stripe

on the sidewalk

the fading light of a memory
waiting for its owner

(follow-up version, after first feedback)

(still walking the lines..)

almost a still life .3

on the opposite side
of a red brick wall
another row of houses -
windows
facing windows

the sky
a small stripe
on the sidewalk

the fading light
of a memory
waiting for its owner

(follow-up version, after second feedback)

almost a still life .4

on the opposite side
of a red brick wall
another row of houses

 windows
windows // facing / windows / facing / windows

the sky

 a small stripe
 on the sidewalk

the fading light

 a memory
 waiting for its owner

