Ok, ok, so I concede

some answers are enough to make you cry or laugh yourself to death. Funny to think we can see all the way past the sky and stars sometimes, even to the ocean floor if we dive deep enough. But yet just between

you
and
me
another
glass

of your favorite Shiraz wine, we are all on a trembling shore strolling along a minor cosmic beach somewhere in the Milky Way's stellar fog holding hands with God. Maybe making love-not-war or both sometimes within our bungeed contingency. Or at least listening to gulls and the milk-white breakers shifting sands of quandary watching at the edge of silences, mystery twinkling light years out towards countless galactic clusters.
