

John's Wife

by Emily Sparkles

Unreasonable anger, Each hour prescribed

The house haunted
with good intentions,
leading where all good intentions lead.

Insight and intellect evident in every observation, but analytical minds turned inward plunge
off at outrageous angles, destroy themselves in unheard of contradictions.

Hysteria, postpartum; diagnosis unimportant. Treatment is all that matters.

She saw
what they told her she was.

