

Against the Wall

by Gary Hardaway

If The Wall is ever built, I hope the Mexican military will bring tanks and blast it into dust without apology.

Were that to provoke war, I'd offer my broken-down body in service of Mexico and happily fling Molotov cocktails against ICE agents in armored vehicles and sing the pain of their burning deaths as triumph against asininity.

