

Hearing the Usual Reports

by Gary Hardaway

In its own defense against what is too concrete the mind allows a magical thought-- asking God-- who doesn't exist-- to nonetheless intercede on the side of calm and mercy which once again concedes to the hard facts of rifle shells and shockwaves filled with shrapnel.

