

Lapidary

by Gary Hardaway

You find a poem clotted with unnecessary words and brush the clots away.

You burnish what is left until it shines and call it your own.

