

Mortality

by Gary Hardaway

The list of things to live for shortens with age. The list of regrets lengthens. A life is your space and time and you recognize-- its boundary approaches faster and faster.

All you might have done expands beyond imagination and into that scope and breadth you stare, bewildered by the pastness of the past.

