

Remembering Daffodils

by Gary Hardaway

I miss the blossoming of daffodils again this year- the burning thrusts of yellow in defiance of the frost that almost always comes and leaves the yellow a bruised brown and slimy mess.

