

The Cosmos as Gerunds

by Gary Hardaway

Nothing becomes. All is always becoming-heating, cooling, accelerating, slowing, fusing and fracturing.

There is no there or where but rather trajectories of probability reigned in by properties and possibilities.

The snapshot in the locket is a lie, the stately edifice an illusion of firmness, commodity, and delight.

