

Things Get Fuzzy

by Gary Hardaway

when the bogeyman might be anywhere.
We can't just bomb Berlin or Dresden, Nagasaki or Hanoi, to make things safe for that democracy we love.

The enemy's no longer conveniently geographic. We must carpet bomb the world to kill the source of all our fear today.

Which is to say everyone, everywhere.

