

Departures

by Hazem Tagiuri

Fingers scrabble idly at pocket seams,
forage between teeth,
grasp for tepid cups,
patter a drumbeat on knees.

They tense and retract
as their owners fixate on flickering digits;
pinpoints of light
radiating promises of home.

