As the Wine Keeps Flowing

by Iain James Robb

My blood has turned to flour
I've been in Babylon too long
My heart was singed by fire
But it's drowning in my song
We raised a prayer to Mary
We had to take our share
We took our places in the ferry
But we didn't pay the fare
And we don't know where we've came from
And we don't know where we're going
But we don't care just as long
Just as long
Just as long

You took part in the foot race
I toasted you with gin
There was a hole inside my suitcase
For your violent violin
And the waters now are raging
Pray to god this boat don't sink
To face the fate of Gabriel's aging
As we lurch towards the brink

As the wine keeps flowing.

And we don't know where we've came from And we don't know where we're going But we don't care just as long Just as long Just as long

Available online at *«http://fictionaut.com/stories/iain-james-robb/as-the-wine-keeps-flowing»*Copyright © 2018 Iain James Robb. All rights reserved.

As the wine keeps flowing.

The ferryman is on to us

He knows we did not pay

His eyes are filled with flour and pus

As he looks our way

There is no shore in sight for us

Our virtues are grey whores

The concubines who left the bus

Are closing all the doors

And we don't know where we've came from

And we don't know where we're going

But we don't care just as long

Just as long

Just as long

As the wine keeps flowing.

I took your sad stringed mandolin
And nailed it to the sink
Her dress of gold was growing thin
Her slippers they were pink
We don't know where we're coming from
Or even where we're going
But we'll be fine for just so long
As the wine
As the wine
As the wine just keeps on flowing.