Buy random DNA on the open market

and drive a poisoned stake into the heart of darkness.

This particular item-- I don't think the coding is going to be hard. I think the protocol definition is where all the work will be.

A cycle of negotiation. A rope. A tree. A bird.

Traditional user name sort of thing. You know, big room, tile floors, wall-to-wall floor-to-ceiling whiteboards on all four walls, proxcard access on the metal door.

Anonymous trades. The RNA peels off the side and slips out past the firewall. A transaction takes place in the ether. No blame.

Sapient glass basically. Glass is a liquid, you know. It's just really, really viscous. Like you.
