Static by J.A. Pak

The murkiness of fall, light getting tossed and lost. The days cut off by damp chill with every thought a different variety of protection.

Things to buy:

winter socks a humidifier electric mattress pad wood for the fireplace automatic timer for the porch lights but only thinking about warm, creamy soups romantic movies tropical islands with all the things to do get the gutters cleaned chimney too replace the shower head in Will's bathroom air out all the wool sweaters dry clean coats yet nothing gets done; need the invigorating frost of true winter.
