

Carpe Tempus

by Jay Faulkner

So busy telling ourselves that there would always be plenty more tomorrows that we forgot that there might be no more today's. Now all I have left is yesterday's.

