Abandon

by Jerry Ratch

They left the breath of their souls upon the lips of others and jumped in with all abandon

They felt the winds on their skin as the heart flew by them on its way into the lost nature of time

You could hear them leaping from the edges of inner space and the surprise, almost surprise as the breath rushed through them like an unknown wind among hot feathery points of the stars