

An American Indian (in a Suit)

by Jerry Ratch

An American Indian (in a suit) at the museum reception, eating pelican wing which looked like enlarged sections of older pulpy (pink) grapefruit

When asked why he was eating this, he said that eating pelican wing gave you the ability to fall from a great height without injury

Instead the body simply absorbed the earth's knowledge at that particular spot

