

Dawn

by Jerry Ratch

Fat robins are chirping — loudly — at 4 a.m.
They're trying to delude
the worms into thinking it's dawn already

The worms get up underground They're grumpy, they bump into things
They come up to the surface and Wham! That's it Another day begins

