

The Birth of Intuition

by Jerry Ratch

My wife's got dangerously good
Peripheral vision
She can see things so far to the side
That I'm almost certain she can see things behind her

And I'm sure she can see things that happened yesterday
But the thing that scares me the most
She can see what happened in my previous lives
All of them

And I'm afraid she's keeping tabs
And may be my secret angel
Or she's in direct cahoots with God
Who may have gotten a little lazy
About keeping tabs on all of us
