

Childish

by Johnny Dantonio

woke up to the sound of a diesel looked out the window to see i'm not home outta bed to see if you had called not a damn thing on my phone its crazy now to be this far street names dont tell where you are wander down to a corner bar no one knows your name

call it, crazy
but i aint one to give up even if its never enough you found me wild, drunk and actin young sin on lips, white on my thumb no bullshit in you made a grown up in me its the kid who always leaves chose this place over you and i i chose this place over you must be crazy

hows our dog, hows our sleepy town? is the summer long, is it pourin down? aint nothin here, ive looked around just me and my words never thought it, but now its true the world now mine, the sky my blue it no longer belongs to you

call it, crazy
i aint one to give up

i found you cryin and asking why my bags all packed, set you aside a confused you, a terrified me
