

Monday

by Johnny Dantonio

I'll fall asleep to "Milwaukee"
because it sounds the way you smell.
I'll wake up with no one next to me, but I'll look;
I'll blink hard before I sit up, shower.

The door shuts slowly to something that's allegedly mine,
a place that will sit and wait until I come home
like a tomb —
just like you.

