

Scent of a Woman - 55

word story

by Judith A. Lawrence

She slipped into a silky sheath dress, and stepped into black sequined heels just as the doorbell rang. Her date had arrived to take her to his much touted Art opening in town. Reaching under the bathroom sink for a final mist of hair spray she realized too late she had grabbed the bug spray.

— Judith A. Lawrence

