

Zippers.

by Katrine Kunst

Things had started to fall apart.

And not only things

— things that were meant to keep other things together.

Three zippers in two months had fallen apart.

I needed to connect.

