

Telephone

by Kim Conklin

“Hello?” he inquired politely.

A dial tone was the only response. It had been so long since the telephone had rung, he'd forgotten the sound. Undaunted, he picked it up every few minutes and asked: “Hello?”

One of these days or nights, someone would be there.

