

Trust In Wolves

by Kirsty Logan

All wolves, my child, want to be eaten.

Not blessed

with vials of water

& unlit confessions;

But blessed

with silked murmurs

& the red of your kiss.

All girls, my darling, want to eat.

To emerge, ripened & swollen.

Trust

my dear

in the desire for wolves.

