

Wintering

by Kirsty Logan

Summer choked
dizzied
whined
for movement,
but dawn stretches now:

Blare of sun like white on fur,
burn of knuckles brought inside,
Soles pressing tender on slush.

Winter makes me reconsider:
I wait for snow.

