

specter in transit

by M. F. Sullivan

at the front of the bus
sways a white-veiled woman:
gnarled hands upon
a bag of palms,

transcendent face
unseen--

emptiness
i forget i have forgotten.

