

Too Late

by Marda Miller

he brought me kisses from New York
little silver ones
not realizing that on the west coast it had been raining for so long the miles in between both our lips had left nothing

but a taste
of bitter chocolate.

