

Alex and Dee Dee

by Mark Waldrop

I was going to write a love poem about a man named Alex and a girl named Dee Dee, but I couldn't remember them as well as I wanted.

I knew about the time she painted their names on the overpass but I have forgotten things about them.

I don't know what became of the dog they bought, or the story behind the tattoo Alex has on his left calf

It was a raccoon face I believe but, I can't remember why.

As for Dee Dee I don't know why she was with someone so much older I hope they do well together.
