

Drinking

by Mark Waldrop

After you started
drinking your meals and
hating politics

I wanted to climb inside,
live in your stomach
and dissolve.

I wanted
to make you see,
hold you captive with
arms stretched, pinned.

listen again, swallow — don't choke because you are mine and I will show you how to love
the world.

