

Morning Sounds

by Mary Alston Capps

Every morning, as each car drives by, the cat stares out the window and mournfully cries, asking if the driver would please love him even a little bit more than you love me.

