

When Birds Do Not Fly

by Michael Tusa

The last chick in the nest gorged his weight in regurgitated mess.
And sank from the horizon like a singing stone sloppily flopping his pillow wings as he fell to his death and slept.

