

How to Lose Control of Your Pencil

by Peter Erich

Real hands hold pennies to break windows and end up in a bedroom bumbling around in the night pilfering every last second from a dream - f

leeti
ng

I have been eavesdropping on Linda Kunhardt who said no matter where you travel boil your poetry

words find a curious afterlife in the stomach lining bindings become bear traps

