

Seeds of Summer

by Peter Erich

Mint grass in a backyard flood light silhouettes on
glittering humidity

watermelon wedges
in our faces
this is when the stars lay
on wet rinds
as we slurp crushed velvet
our tongues sifting
for black diamonds.

