

Gentle

by Roberto C. Garcia

Your voice like scent
of Amaranthus,
teasing air
on wet August nights.

Your voice so soft
I wish it was touch.

How lightly could I
dance on your sigh?
How, to try?

Just staring,
so intently
from afar,
makes me afraid I'll break you.

