

A Poem for Chris Toll

by Shawn Misener

I can always dance from a distance conduct from the corner and dream from the deck of your spaceship we all die from the bottom up except you you died head first no doubt creeping through the cosmic womb with an electric smirk

searching for why there's love in your gloves

