Love in the Time of the NASA Mars Rover

by Shawn Misener

I've lost the remote control to my brain this couch makes an excellent spaceship replete with smashed biscuit stars and black holes buried in the cracks

I feel like a transcendental captain navigating your body you believe in myths and monsters I believe in you believing in them we believe that our pizza is on the way my heart is a wireless bass module scouring the suburban one-way avenues with delicious noise pollution