

Faith

by Steven Gowin

I have faith in no god.

But black holes suck in matter and supernovas explode. And that goes on forever. Einstein said that energy is infinite.

I probably misunderstand, but it makes more sense than virgin births, and seer stones in a magic hat.

We just cycle around. I was a junkie in another life, and what animated Great Great Granddad shows up in the tomato we picked yesterday.

Hell, I can live with that.

